Dear Karen,

Gratitude. I often find myself thinking how grateful my children should be for all that I do for them. Or how grateful my husband should be that I dedicate my life to taking care of him. Or how the neighbors should appreciate my beautifully kept yard. The other drivers should appreciate that I don't text and drive anymore. Yes, my mind often races with thoughts of gratitude. Haha!

Seriously though, I would hope that we all do many things everyday make others grateful. I'm not Mother Theresa but I like doing for others so often! I love that I have the desire and ability to make life better for others and create experiences that inspire grateful hearts.

If you are like me, you are undoubtedly grateful for all that we have love in our lives, our warm and comfortable homes, our full bellies, and on and on.

But this is not the gratitude that I want to draw your attention to today. The gratitude I'm referring to is the deep abiding gratitude that is accessible to all but experienced by few. I have tasted it. I want more of it. The gratitude I'm talking about is the peaceful knowing that others have gone before us and they have laid the groundwork for the joy and peace we are experiencing today. We have the knowledge that the earth has been rotating and evolving for eons... and we are walking on it at just the right time in history to accomplish the purposes deep within our hearts. The gratitude that we are not each responsible for our own happenings but part of a bigger plan. Gratitude that we are not ultimately in control and therefore not ultimately responsible for the good, the bad, or the ugly. Of course we play a part and we have great influence.

I thank God that I have faith in Him. I lived many years without it. I'm happy. I had love. I had joy. But the deep gratitude and sense of 'a part in the world' only came when I put my faith in God. This is the gratitude I'm talking about today. I hope you have it, too! :-)

Joyfully and with gratitude,

Chicktime Tampa (Florida) Founder: Tammy Fallin

"Let me win; but if I cannot win, let me be brave in the attempt."
~ Special Olympics motto

Chicktime Tampa is committed to spreading the love of the local community with special needs! 😊

To share a bit about myself, I grew up in a small town in Florida. I was married to my childhood sweetheart for 15 years, but we never had one child together but seven grandchildren. My husband is a Deputy and he works in downtown Tampa. I live in a beautiful home right on red, where there are many things to do. I did not get a ticket for my wedding, marriage and a beautiful day with my friends. We did not

Chicktime Hicksville (New York)
Founder: Michelle Picarielo

My name is Michelle Pica believer of "Everything has a reason." Chicktime cross affirmation of this. Once mission statement I knew what I was called upon to do enough to know that the important things you care about are Love and Hope. Being feeling forgotten is a pain overlooked. There are too many out here that are deprived of vital feelings, and too many overlooked. Luckily, I was in an abundance of love in my life, nothing more I wish to do with the children who need to wish to be able to align others who share the same goals in creating happiness, and into seemingly hopeless situations, one child at a time.

Chicktime Toledo (Ohio)
Founder: Tina York

Hello, I am Tina York I am looking for families (woman and children of Ohio. I want to provide support for cycle of abuse. I see many lost women who just need something positive to see children that want to do something for their mothers... and Chicktime can give them a chance. I want to try to end the cycle with information, uniting the community, our hearts, and trying to help women and children find joy. Things can change. We must empower women to help themselves and teach them that what happened to them, it doesn't happen to their children.
